Our first peep in a month -- wondering where we've been? Burning Man mainly, and not just going for the party but also creating their main sound installation which was heard at the very foot of The Man.
Now that the man has burned, we're back from the desert but keeping on the down low -- all the better to work on our next album,
All Rights Reserved.

Our radio efforts don't stop, however. In fact, they're more than ever: you can now hear The ECC regularly on FCC Free Radio , San Francisco's newest community radio station at the end of the dial: 107.3 FM. Not in San Francisco? Not a problem:
listen online
via Winamp
,
Quicktime
, or
Windows Media Player
. But in case you are
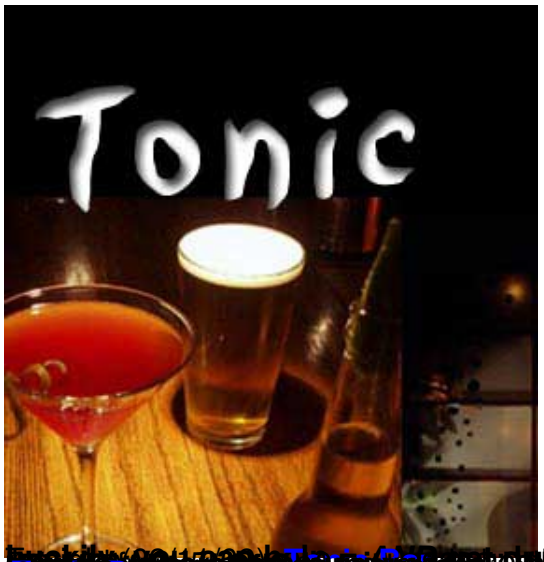
in San Francisco,
we could use your help:

FCC Free Radio is just starting out, but this is a serious effort: a full studio is up and running -- mixing board, microphones, listener call-in phone line, the whole deal. Add the rent cost (San Francisco rent cost, ugh) and the studio is pretty pricey, especially for a struggling new radio station.



FCC Free Radio broadcasts Have a